Labour voicing their concerns over proposed changes to how they operate in the construction industry in our province. Terry Parker Provincial Building and Construction Trade Council Manager:

...if a union fails to represent its members within a three-year period, if the contractor is even outside of province or had not worked in a three-period, and this goes back; it's retroactive, so this could actually go back to the 1970's, the 1960's.

Craig Wallebeck:

Norris says the Bill will move forward in the fall session.
