TOPIC: Labour Message - Scrap Bill 80

Andrew Dawson: Anchor

There was music, food, facing painting, and other activities, much like any other picnic, but on Labour Day there was also a message: scrap Bill 80. The Construction Trades Council is opposed to the bill before the Legislature that would make major changes to how building unions are organized in our Province. The Council's Terry Parker hopes the Labour Minister is getting the message.

Terry Parker: Construction Trades Council

When we had a last meeting with him, he said that we brought up some valid points, and he was gonna look at it with fresh eyes, so hopefully at the beginning of October when our next meeting is set up with him, he'll actually either propose some radical changes, or scrap the bill altogether.

Andrew Dawson:

Parker, at the Annual Labour Day Picnic, says there's been seventeen years without a strike in the construction industry and there's no reason to disrupt that right now.
